2019 UNITED WAY ANNUAL REPORT

Of community, George Bernard Shaw said, "I am of the opinion that my life belongs to the whole community and as long as I live, it is my privilege to do for it whatever I can." This quote resonates with me, a former farm kid and current market president of Dacotah Bank. Growing up on a farm in north central South Dakota, I witnessed hard work and learned the meaning of community by watching my parents assist our neighbors and vice versa. Whether it was a fire or an unexpected death, community and volunteering were evident in the Orient Hills. Thus, I have always advocated the benefits of volunteering: for the betterment of the people in need, for the non-profit organizations, for the volunteers themselves, and for the community as a whole. That spirit of helping -- of volunteering -- is our privilege and one we must pass on to the next generation.

I met Aaron shortly after moving from Watertown to Aberdeen. I had not served on the United Way (UW) board in Watertown, but I have always been a dedicated donor, and I knew of the good the UW provided. Now, as I near the end of my first year as president, I am thankful for having witnessed the true goodness of the UW in our community. This year, we witnessed a record number of volunteers and a record amount of food, over 25,000 pounds gathered for the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) food drive. Also, we witnessed a record number of participants for the Christmas Eve at the Hospitals event. We added a new agency partnership with Bethesda Adult Day Health Services. And finally, this year brought about the continued development of a UW internship designed for young adults.

The NALC food drive and the UW have left an indelible mark on me, a father of three. I have seen how volunteering has changed my children's perspective on life. For the past four years, all three have volunteered their time by helping with the NALC food drive. Together, we sort and pack food for our local food banks. By example, we adults have ignited the spark of volunteerism in them. In turn, they have witnessed the goodness that comes from people choosing to lift up the community.

We lead best by example. For many people, including teenagers, the hardest part is just getting started. If we show the next generation the benefits of volunteering, then we motivate them to follow in our footsteps. The UW continues to promote volunteerism to our next generation of givers through the internship program and volunteer opportunities for high school and college students. Aaron and Angie have done an outstanding job of recognizing the importance of working directly with local high school and college students. For instance, when Aberdeen Central's National Honor Society reached out for assistance with their Golden Hour of Volunteerism idea, a partnership was formed with the UW, and the UW helped students, classes, clubs, and teams fulfill their Golden Hour mission.

As I prepare for my second year as the UW president, I wish I could take the benefit -- that happiness felt by volunteering, wrap it up, and give it to the next generation. In addition, remember that volunteering is a wide field of experiences that might include joining a board or a committee, performing physical labor such as stocking food shelves or landscaping, or making a difference through stationary experiences such as office help or answering the phones for a blood bank or telethon. There really is something for everyone. If you are a business entity, consider offering paid volunteer time as an employee benefit. If your employer doesn't have one, try to get one started!

In conclusion, I leave you with one more quote. The venerable Winston Churchill stated it perfectly, "You make a living by what you get. You make a life by what you give." I urge you to ask yourself, "What can I give?" Think about your talents and passions. And remember the thoughts of George Bernard Shaw, using our talents for the betterment of the community is our greatest privilege.

We have been enthusiastic supporters of our United Way for decades. However, this opportunity to be campaign co-chairs has made us so much more aware of how much this is needed.

Meetings with many businesses revealed a commitment to the cause we saw so clearly from owners, managers and employees. Also, the Rails Club members' enthusiasm was inspiring. We learned things at every event - things not apparent to most area residents. Things like matching gifts from employers...like employee generated special events...like generous giving by nearly all in some businesses.

We stressed two main points of emphasis.

First, how United Way donations help make the Aberdeen area a place where life is good. Thousands of adults and kids find every day life easier and more functional as they engage agency services.

Second, assuming most of those at our events were doing OK with daily life, we encouraged thinking about others who were not doing OK - those in need of help to simply cope with challenges of life and get through that day. Many have no alternative to get help other than what they find with United Way agencies.

To all who give and have been giving, we offer our thanks and our appreciation. We are grateful for the privilege of living here among you.

It been an eye opening experience to see how well this campaign and the entire United Way system works. Aaron and Angie are so good at what they do and it's been an honor for us to be associated with this great cause.

Mike speaking at the Community Kick-Off Event, September 2019, K.O. Lee Public Library

Mike, Stacy , and fellow judges at the Sanford Health Chili Cook-Off Contest and Fundraiser.

It is hard to believe that at the start of 2020, I will have completed my 6th year as Director of the United Way. During this time, United Way has accomplished several goals along with encountering challenges that many of our nonprofits face daily. As we move forward into a new decade, we see opportunities that will continue the success of our great agency. Under the leadership of the United Way Board of Directors, the coming years for United Way look bright and promising.

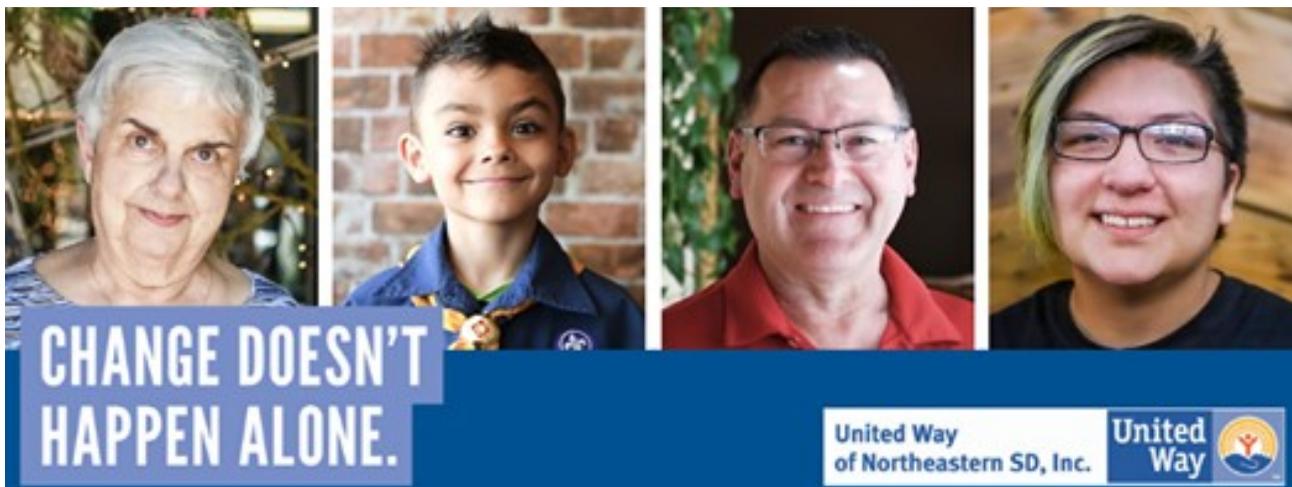

2019 witnessed several accomplishments. We welcomed Bethesda's Adult Day Health Services into our list of partner programs. With the aging population set to nearly double in the next 30 years, we felt that it was important to align with programs that are meeting the needs of seniors in our region. During 2019, we also witnessed record numbers for our Community Impact projects. The National Association of Letter Carriers food drive collected a record amount of food, over 25,000 lbs., that went to local pantries and after-school programs in our region. We also had the highest turnout for the Christmas Eve at the Hospital Event that saw over 100 singers spreading holiday cheer to anyone in the hospitals over the Christmas season.

Recent changes in corporate giving structures have had an impact on our campaign. We knew United Way needed to refocus our efforts for 2019. I am proud to say under the leadership of Mike and Stacy Levsen and the combined efforts of several volunteers, we hit our goal of $705,000. Mike and Stacy attended almost every event that was held over the past year. At each campaign stop, they gave an impassioned request on our behalf. Their knowledge of education and government in our region is second to none, and that allowed them to connect with so many around this area. Thank you, Mike and Stacy.

The campaign chairs are the heart of our campaign, and the engine that drives that campaign, is the Rails Club. The Rails Club structure is based on a minimum of a $500 contribution. Since its inception in 1984, the Rails Club has raised over 11 million dollars. Once again under the leadership of Kae McNeil, Brad Moore, and Joe Senger, I am happy to report that we have a record number of Rails Club members, 388 members raising over $305,000!

2020 has several great things to look forward to. In partnership with the Aberdeen Magazine, the United Way will host a feature discussing the programs, people, and events that make our non-profit scene work. We will also be looking to continue our partnerships with various organizations in our region. We have begun the work to prepare for potential spring flooding in our area. In partnership with Brown County Emergency Management, the Helpline Center, and other agencies, we are developing our plan on how to address the potential for a very wet spring. 211 will be the contact number for up-to-date information, resources, and damage reporting. We will patiently wait to see, what role the United Way will play in developing any assistance plan. Lastly, we are already planning for the 2020/21 campaign with a fresh perspective being developed using local artist and community providers to illustrate that need in our community.

The United Way only works because its volunteers, donors, and partners. I would like to personally thank our incredible Board of Directors, Foundation Board, the numerous volunteers, and all the donors that make us what we are today. Lastly, I would like to thank Ms. Angie Cleberg, who recently was promoted to Communications and Impact Coordinator, for her tireless efforts and commitment to the mission of United Way. Yes, 2020 looks to be a great year!

2019 Target Store “Thank You” visit with crew.

Accountability and integrity are the two most important values for any non-profit organization. United Way of Northeastern South Dakota takes seriously its responsibility of financial oversight. Careful planning and stewardship ensure that our partner Agencies and funded programs receive the greatest possible benefit. The Full Board and Executive Committee meet and monitor the financial results of the United Way monthly, providing oversight and controls that ensure donor gifts are used to the greatest potential.

We are blessed as a community to have so many wonderful non-profits fighting to make strong impacts for families and neighborhoods in Northeastern South Dakota. The executive leaders along with the combined efforts of the Allocation Committee oversee the distribution of the financial resources of the United Way to aid the agencies in their missions. Aaron and Angie work diligently to ensure that the financial position of the United Way remains strong for years to come.

During the past year the United Way began planning for future transitions within the Board leadership. Stability and knowledge in key leadership roles has always been a hallmark of how things are done at the United Way. Since this was my last year on the Board we decided to spend the year allowing the next Treasurer to train in the various areas of oversight and day to day requirements. Cody Hageman worked closely with Aaron and myself each month to prepare for the transition into the Treasurer role. Cody has done an excellent job learning this new role and brings in a lot of knowledge and enthusiasm to his new position.

The pages following the report present the financial results in several ways. The 5 Year Analysis represents graphically the last five years of operations. It compares the goal against actual donations received and the related expenses from agency requests, programs services, and administration expenses. The analysis shows the positive direction the United Way has been able to achieve over the past few years. The United Way continues to show a positive increase in total net assets.

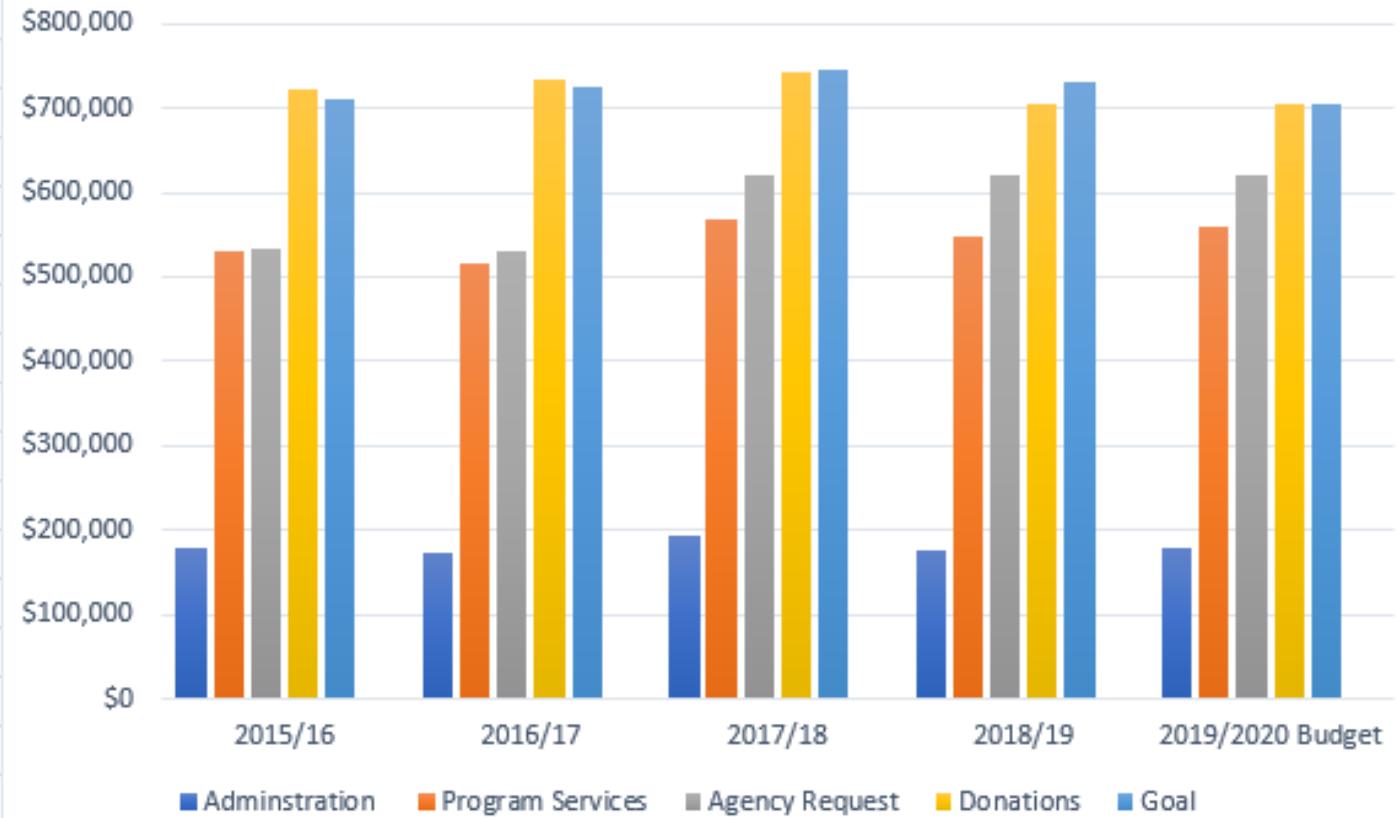

Our external auditors, Eide Bailly, LLP, have audited the consolidated financial statements of United Way of Northeastern South Dakota, Inc. and concluded that the financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the United Way as of August 31, 2019. The accompanying pages are excerpts from the audited financial statements. Those pages include the Consolidated Statement of financial position and Consolidated Statement of Activities. A complete copy of the United Way's audit may be obtained from the website: <https://www.uwnesd.org/uw-990s-audits-annual-report>.

It was my pleasure to serve on the Board of Directors and as Treasurer for United Way of Northeastern South Dakota, Inc. over the past six years. I am excited to see what the future has in store for the United Way of Northeastern South Dakota
